FUNDAMENTAL PROVISIONS

Section 1

Introductory Provisions

Higher education institutions, as the highest level of the educational system, are regarded as the top centres of education, independent knowledge and creative activity. Higher education institutions play a key role in the scholarly, scientific, cultural, social and economic development of society by carrying out the following:

- a) maintaining and augmenting acquired knowledge as well as cultivating scholarly, scientific, research, development, innovation, artistic and other creative activities in accordance with the type and orientation of the institution;
- b) facilitating access to higher education in compliance with democratic principles; providing appropriate professional qualifications and training for research work and other demanding specialized activities;
- c) offering other forms of education; facilitating the acquisition, expansion, deepening and refreshment of knowledge in various areas of learning and culture and thus contributing to lifelong learning;
- d) playing an active role in the public discussion of social and ethical issues, cultivating cultural diversity and mutual understanding, shaping civil society and preparing the younger generation for life in such a society;
- e) contributing to development on both the national and the regional level, while cooperating with the various levels of the state administration and regional and municipal government as well as with the business and cultural communities;
- f) developing international and particularly European cooperation as a fundamental aspect of their activities, supporting joint projects with similar institutions abroad, implementing the mutual recognition of studies and diplomas and facilitating the exchange of academic staff and students.

Section 2

- (1) Higher education institutions provide accredited degree programmes as well as lifelong learning programmes. - (7) Higher education institutions may be public, private or state institutions. The higher education institutions for the military and the police are state institutions.
- (8) Other legal entities involved in similar activities may participate in the creative activities of higher education institutions.
- (9) Only higher education institutions are allowed to award academic degrees, to carry out the procedures for conferring “venium docendi” (habilitation) and for the appointment of professors, to use academic insignia and to hold academic ceremonies.

 - d) a foreign document concerning a foreign secondary education attained by study under a secondary education programme at a foreign secondary school in accordance with the regulations of the foreign country and which enables its holder in the given foreign country to take part in a Bachelor's or a consecutive Master's degree programme; provision of Section 90 (2) second sentence and Section 90 (3) shall be used analogically, but the higher education institution may also ask for additional information about the contents and scope of the foreign secondary education and a confirmation of the particular foreign secondary education school or another particular foreign body in terms of the fact that a participant in the secondary education programme of the given foreign secondary education school is, in the specific foreign state, entitled to attend a Bachelor's degree programme or a non-consecutive Master's degree programme.

- (5) If a student who gained foreign higher education by completing a degree programme at a higher education institution abroad applies for a Doctoral or a consecutive Master's degree programme, he or she should demonstrate meeting the conditions stated in the third sentence of Paragraph (1) or in Paragraph (3) by means of:

- (6) The provisions referred to in Paragraphs (4) d) and (5) b) are only executed when the student demonstrates a foreign document proving the meeting of the conditions of completion of secondary education completed by the "maturitní zkouška" examination to the higher education institution which has Institutional Accreditation for at least one field of study and this institution has no doubts about sufficient level, scope, or content of the previous foreign education of a student. If necessary, the higher education institution will ask the student to prove his or her education in the manner referred to in Paragraph (4) a) or (5) a).
- (7) A higher education institution may levy a fee of maximum 20% of the basis set out in accordance with Section 58 (2) for operations associated with the evaluation of meeting the conditions for admission to a degree programme in compliance with Paragraphs (4) d) and (5) c). The fee constitutes a part of the income of the higher education institution.

Section 49

- (1) Higher education institutions and faculties are free to specify additional conditions for admission to studies that relate to specific knowledge, abilities, talent or results achieved at secondary schools, tertiary professional schools or higher education institutions. Admission to a Master's degree programme following a Bachelor's degree programme may also be conditional upon the similarity of both programmes or the number of credits acquired in certain types of courses during studies. Credits are understood as a quantitative expression of the workload of a certain part of studies. In addition, higher education institutions and faculties may set a limit to the number of applicants who have met the requirements that will be admitted; where more applicants have met these requirements, then admission will be on the basis of their ranking order. The admission to certain degree programmes also may be conditional upon the applicant's medical fitness. The applicant's medical fitness is evaluated in relation to requirements of medical fitness for a given degree programme which are made public by the higher education institution in compliance with Paragraph (5). The applicant is obliged to submit a document with such requirements of medical fitness to a health service provider prior to evaluation of his or her medical fitness. Health conditions of the applicant shall be proven by means of a medical report issued by a general practitioner for children and youth; if the applicant is not registered with such a provider, then his/her health conditions shall be determined by any provider in these professional fields. The determining physician will be a general practitioner for children and youth. If the field of study is related to sports or physical education, the medical report shall be issued by a provider from the field of medicine for physical education.

- (2) The conditions for the admission of foreigners to study in degree programmes must make it possible for obligations resulting from international agreements that are binding on the Czech Republic to be met.
- (3) Higher education institutions and faculties are free to specify different admission conditions for applicants who have already completed a degree programme or part of a programme or for applicants who are currently enrolled in another degree programme at a higher education institution in the Czech Republic or abroad or who have completed an educational programme or its part at a tertiary professional school or who are studying an accredited educational programme at a tertiary professional school in the Czech Republic or abroad.
- (4) The fulfilment of conditions specified in subsections (1) and (3) is subject to verification, as a rule by means of an entrance examination.
- (5) The deadline for submitting applications for admission, how they are to be submitted in paper or electronic form, the conditions for admission pursuant to subsections (1) and (3), as well as the method for determining whether the conditions have been met and the date by which this will be made known, must be made public by higher education institutions or faculties well in advance, but in any case, no less than four months before the deadline. Should an entrance examination be required as one of the conditions for admission, the higher education or faculty must make public the form of the examination, a general description of its contents and the criteria by which it will be evaluated. All the above information must be posted on the public part of the website of the higher education institutions and faculties. The maximum number of students that will be admitted to study in individual degree programmes must also be made public in the same manner.
- (6) If a degree programme has been granted an accreditation or an institutional accreditation for a field of study by the Accreditation Bureau, the higher education institution or faculty need not observe the requirement to make the above information public at least four months before the deadline for submission of admission applications, where this might prevent the academic year beginning on time. In such a case, the period within which applications must be submitted may be shortened, though not to less than one month. The other conditions set out in subsection (5) remain unchanged.

Section 50

Admission Procedure

- (1) The admission procedure begins upon receipt of the application for admission to study at a higher education institution or its constituent part that offers the relevant degree programme. The application must include the applicant's first name(s) and family name, identity number (if this has been assigned), and place of permanent residence in the Czech Republic or place of residence outside the Czech Republic. - (4) The decision has to be made within no more than thirty days from the time when the admission conditions were verified in compliance with Section 49 (5). The higher education institution is not obliged to inform the applicant about the possibility to comment on the documents of the decision prior to the submission of such decision. If an applicant's place of residence is unknown, delivery of the decision takes the form of posting it on the official notice board.
- (5) After being informed of the decision, the applicants are entitled to examine their materials. A higher education institution may provide applicants with copies of their materials instead of the possibility to examine original materials.

Should written entrance examinations constitute a part of the admission procedure, the higher education institution or the faculty will release a statistical survey of all the component parts of the entrance examinations. The Ministry will issue a decree concerning the procedure and conditions for making public information about the course and results of entrance examinations, including the requirements for basic statistical data.

- (4) Individuals lose their status as students during the period when studies are interrupted. Upon the expiration of the period of interruption, the individual is eligible to re-enroll in studies. The higher education institution will establish the conditions upon which the person in a recognized period of parenthood may apply for studies again, prior to the expiration of the period of interruption.

Section 54a

In combination with the custody of children, the student is entitled to prolong the period for the completion of the study duties along with conditions of passing to the next term, year, or block in accordance with the Study and Examination Regulations, namely during the period of maternity leave,^{15b)} with the proviso that s/he will not interrupt the studies during this period.
- 2) A student who presents to the university or the faculty a confirmation issued by a sport body representing the sports field in the Czech Republic that s/he represents the Czech Republic in a sports field, is entitled to modifications of the study curriculum to enable the student to take part in this representation and in necessary preparations.

Section 55 Closure of Studies

- (1) Closure of studies is accomplished by completing a degree programme. Closure of studies occurs on the date when the state examination at the end of studies, or the last part of this examination, is passed.

 - d) the document listing completed exams;
 - e) the student status certificate;

- (2) The student identity card is given to the student by a higher education institution when he or she enrolls in the studies. This document confirms the legal standing of a student which entitles him or her to use the rights and benefits arising from the laws or internal regulations of a higher education institution.
- (3) The main purpose of the student record book is to record individual courses and to indicate the results achieved in these courses. The data stipulated in the previous sentence may also be kept in a higher education institution's or faculty's electronic information system. In this case, the higher education institution or faculty is required to ensure that the data in the electronic information system cannot be manipulated by unauthorized persons. The student record book in this case is a transcript of these data officially confirmed by the relevant higher education institution or faculty.

- (4) The higher education diploma attests to the completion of a degree programme.
- (5) The certificate listing completed exams or the certificate on studies are issued to:

- (8) In the documents listed in subsection (1) and in the decisions and certificates listed in Section 50 to Section 69, Section 89 to Section 91 and Section 99, the higher education institution may include the identity number of the individual concerned, if such a number has been assigned.

The base is announced by the Ministry by the end of January in the calendar year, and applies to the academic year begun in that calendar year. Data pertaining to the previous calendar year are used for calculation of the base.
- (3) Should a student's enrolment in a degree programme exceed the standard length of studies in a Bachelor's or Master's degree programme by more than one year, the public higher education institution sets a fee corresponding to at least one and a half times the base for each further six months of study begun. The length of studies also includes the length of all preceding studies in Bachelor's or Master's degree programmes that have not been completed pursuant to subsections 45 (3) or 46 (3), unless they are previous studies, which came to an end and were followed by the completion of a degree programme of the same type. The length of time in which the student was enrolled in these degree programmes, or enrolled concurrently in these degree programmes and in the current programme is calculated only once. Prior to that, the registered period of parenthood is excluded from the total length of studies calculated in compliance with this paragraph.

- (4) Should a public higher education institution offer degree programmes carried out in a foreign language, it sets study fees for Bachelor's, Master's or Doctoral degree programmes and may set fees for operations associated with the admission procedure. The provisions of subsections (1) to (3) do not apply to the setting of study-related fees.
- (5) Public higher education institutions will set and announce on the public part of their website the study-related fees for the following academic year not later than the last day before the deadline for submission of admission applications. Should a public higher education institution set and announce the amount of the fees for the following year later than that, it cannot charge fees for the students admitted for studies from the beginning of the following academic year in a greater amount than those that were set for the academic year when those students applied for studies. The rules for setting the size of these fees and how and by when they must be paid are stipulated in the Statutes of the public higher education institution.
- (6) Study-related fees, with the exception of those indicated in subsection (4), are regarded as income for the scholarship and bursary fund of the public higher education institution.
- (7) Decisions on fixing study-related fees pursuant to subsections (3) must be announced at least ninety days before payment is due. In the case of an appeal against a decision to impose study-related fees, the Rector may reduce, waive or defer the date of payment of the fees, taking into account in particular the study results and the social circumstances of a student in accordance with provisions in the Statutes of the public higher education institution.
- (8) Study-related fees set pursuant to subsections (1) to (4) are not subject to general regulations on fees.

Section 59

This discussion of the infraction may only take place in the absence of the student if he or she has been invited to the session in due form, but has failed to excuse him/herself in advance. Neither the Rector nor the Dean may impose a sanction more severe than that decided on by the Disciplinary Committee.
